WILL HAVE A PARK

The Residents of the Bluffs Have a Scheme

IMPROVE THE HEIGHTS

City Surveyor Stevens Has Drawn Plan for Roadways That Will Furnish an Outlet.

A plan was submitted to the committee on streets of the common council last night which if carried out will make the hills and bluffs north of the old reservoir one of the prettiest spots Alderman Saunders offered a resolution to have Livingston street graded to Coldbrook street. This would necessitate a cut of seventy-hve feet and would then leave the grade steeper than the grade of Bridge street hill. The territory on top of the hills has slowly been settled, but the residents have no outlet from the hill except to come south to Hastings afreet or Bridge street. They naturally wish a road leading to the north, but the enormous cost would render their property valueless. Another objection and one which is most difficult to overcome is the fact that there is no street dedi-cated to the city between Walbridge street and Coldbrook street. The Tanner Taylor plat through which Livingston street would run was never accepted by the city and therefore the street does not belong to it. Property owners and residents on these hills have had Fred Stevens, the surveyor, prepare a plan by which an outlet to the north and west may be effected and the hills made valuable. The idea is to convert the steep side hills into a park running along the card through the mails. He pleaded north, east and west sides.

Plan For the Road. The road designed to lead down from the hills would start at the corner of Livingston and Walbridge streets, and fall of not more than five feet to the hundred until it touches Observatory street, one block south. Here it turns back to the north and west and touches Walbridge street again at its intersec-tion with Chinton street. It would then follow Walbridge street to Taylor street where the grade is level. Between Livingston street and Clinton street on the direct line of Walbridge street, would stop leading down, so that pedestrians need not follow the long curve in the road. Within the curve could be arranged a beautiful set of terraces, similar to those in Crescent park. The plan was carefully explained by Arthur Dennison, who spoke for the residents, and it will be carefully inrestigated by the committee.

The committee on bridges discussed the matter of the Wealthy avenue bridge, but will make no report next Monday, though the committee does not favor building without a

The committee on sewers held a session with residents on Bostwick street. Some of the residents wish a new sewer and some remonstrate against it. It will be necessary for the committee to visit the place before making a report.

The committee on ordinances tackeled an ordinance for the extension of a street car line in Madison avenue of Hall street, but will probable south of Hall street, but will probably report in favor of the extension.

OUT OF THE STATE.

The Complaining Witness Against Henry Fay Did Not Appear.

"If your honor, please," said Simon La Grou, assistant prosecutor of the himself to Judge Burlingame, "the complaining witness against Harry Fay is out of the late, or else she is somewhere in the northern part of the state and we may—" "I don't care aything about all the long story. What do you alley west of Canal street, from Eric street to Huron street. The defendabout all the long story. What do you want?" asked the judge. "If your honor, please, Mr. Fay wishes to plead guilty to simple larceny," said Simon. "Come with me," said the judge, and the prisoner retired for a moment. "You wish to plead guilty to larceny greater than $25, do you?" said the judge, on resuming his seat. The prisoner remained silent. Charley Watts sprang to his feet and said, "No. no; it is for larceny less than $25." "Where are the files" asked the court. "Perhaps we can find the value of the goods taken in the files." The court messenger ran for the files, but came back breathless and frightened. He could not find the files. Mr. La Grou shuffled over the papers on his table, scratched his head for an idea and suddenly beamed into a sickly deliberations.
